

re imagine arm end reserve the alternative vision

'Arm End is an important place that has been created as a living cultural landscape over 1000's of years and will be destroyed by the development of a golf course' RODNEY DILLON

The RITE alternative vision will:

- Create a balance of passive recreational activities which allow for enjoyment for all
- Interpret and protect the cultural landscape, indigenous and post colonisation/settlement
- Reimagine Arm End as a place for art experiences and sensitive artistic interventions
- Sensitively rehabilitate the reserve to reveal key moments in the landscape
- Re-establish connections to the 'wild' ecology
- Reclaim relationship with remote coastal and estuarine landscape
- Concentrate activity opportunities near track head
- Minimise infrastructure by employing a restriction activity gradient: low to high [track head to Gellibrand Point]
- Protect and nurture the natural, cultural and picturesque qualities

PHOTO | BRONWYN SCANLON

Activity restriction gradient will enable:

- Concentrate activities to minimise visual impact of facilities and infrastructure
- Protection of ecological values, restrict access to the spit completely
- Allow interpretative elements at the track head to develop awareness of indigenous cultural values
- Restrict certain activities in sensitive parts of the reserve eg, accessing the spit
- Consideration of restricting dogs and bikes to the southern part of the reserve

Caught in the Derwent estuary, Arm End is a unique headlands remote and fragile, a place of recovery and quietude

creating a place of quietude & recovery